The Boy Who Cried Wolf

Darren was a shepherd boy. He was just old enough to go out with the sheep by himself. "Watch for wolves," his father said. "If you see one, call for help."

Darren walked the sheep into the hills above the village. The sheep ate grass. Darren got bored. He didn't like being alone. He wished for some company.

"Help! Wolf!" he called.

People from the village came running to Darren. Now he wasn't alone. But the people didn't stay with Darren. When they saw there was no wolf, the people went back to the village.

Darren became lonely again.

"Help! Wolf!" he called.

Once again, the villagers came running. They looked around but didn't see a wolf. They were unhappy.

"Are you playing a game?" they asked Darren.

The people went back to the village. Darren was left all alone. Just then, he saw a wolf!

"Help! Wolf!" he called.

This time no one came. They thought he was playing a game. The wolf ran off with one of the sheep.

A Dog and his Bone

A dog found a nice bone. He held it in his mouth. He growled at anyone who tried to take it.

The dog went to the woods to bury his bone. He came to a pond. He looked into the water. He saw reflection. He thought it was another dog with a bone. He growled at the dog in the water. The dog in the water growled back.

"I'll take his bone, too," the dog thought.

He snapped at the dog in the water. When he snapped, his own bone fell into the water. Now the greedy dog had none.

TEST: Pie Girl

It was Izzy's first day at her new school. Her class was practicing for a talent show.

"I'm sorry you won't have time to learn the act," said Mr. Parker.

Izzy didn't mind at all. She felt nervous and shy. She didn't want to get up in front of the whole school.

"Hey," called Ben. "She could be the pie girl!"

"Well, we might not need a pie girl. But if we do, Izzy could do it. That way, everyone would know who she is."

Izzy was too nervous to ask what "pie girl" meant.

The next day at school, everyone went to the gym. Each class had an act in the talent show. Izzy just sat and watched. At the end, Miss Fink's class won. Miss Fink marched right over to Mr. Parker.

"Okay," she said. "Who's your pie girl or pie boy?"

Everyone in the class began to chant Izzy's name. She followed Miss Fink to the center of the gym. There, a boy from Miss Fink's class got to throw a pie in Izzy's face.

Everyone laughed and cheered. Everyone except Izzy. She went to the bathroom and cried. What a terrible way to start off at a new school!

This resource also includes ONE test with different Lexile Levels for student assessment.

ABOUT LEXILE LEVELS

MagiCore Learning, LLC is a certified Lexile® Partner. These texts are officially measured and approved by Lexile and MetaMetrics® to ensure appropriate rigor and differentiation for students.

The Lexile Framework® for Reading measures are scientific, quantitative text levels. When the Lexile of a text is measured, specific, measurable attributes of the text are considered, including, but not limited to, word frequency, sentence length, and text cohesion. These are difficult attributes for humans to evaluate, so a computer measures them.

Common Core State Standards uses Lexile level bands as one measure of text complexity. Text complexity ranges ensure that students are college and career ready by the end of 12th grade. Lexile measures help educators scaffold and differentiate instruction, as well as monitor reading growth.

Grade Band	Lexile® Bands Aligned to Common Core Expectations
K-1	190L-530L
2-3	420L-820L
4-5	740L-1,010L
6-8	1,185L-1,385L

Keep in mind when using any leveled text that many students will need scaffolding and support to reach text at the high end of their grade band. According to Appendix A of the Common Core Standards, "It is important to recognize that scaffolding often is entirely appropriate. The expectation that scaffolding will occur with particularly challenging texts is built into the Standards' grade-by-grade text complexity expectations, for example. The general movement, however, should be toward decreasing scaffolding and increasing independence both within and across the text complexity bands defined in the Standards."

Two Doors

Artem ran along the pathway. Bushes grew tall on either side. He turned left, then right, then right again. There seemed to be no way out of the maze.

At the next turn, Artem came to a dead end. It was a solid wall of bushes. In the middle were two doors. Artem looked closely. Each door had a face on it.

"Choose wisely!" said the left door.

Artem read the sign above the doors.

*One of us leads to safety,
And the other one leads to doom.*

*One of us always lies,
And the other one tells the truth.*

Artem wondered which door to choose. He asked the door on the right, "Do you lead to safety?"

"Yes!" the right door said.

Artem wondered again. What if that was the door that always lies?

"Are there clouds in the sky right now?" he asked the right door.

"No, of course not," said the right door.

Artem looked up at the cloudy sky. He had caught the right door in a lie. He pushed open the left door and ran to safety.

Festival Fib

It's not always fun to be in charge. That's what I learned when I helped with the school festival.

Miss Grove put me in charge of volunteer signups. Any students who wanted to help at the festival had to see me. At first, it all went smoothly. Then, my best friend Jessie asked to sign up. She wanted to be a juggler. Jessie was just learning to juggle.

"We don't really have a stage or any acts," I explained. "I just need people to work at booths."

Jessie wouldn't give up. "I could wander through the crowd," she said. "Everyone loves a juggler."

She showed me her juggling. She dropped the balls right away. She tried again. More dropped balls.

"I'll get back to you," I said.

The next day, I told Jessie, "I'm sorry, but Miss Grove said we couldn't have a juggler. It's too dangerous."

I just hope Jessie doesn't find out that I never spoke to Miss Grove about it.
