3. Road bicycle racing is the second most-watched sport in the world. One famous bicycle race is the Tour de France. It is held in France every summer. While most of the race takes place in France, it can sometimes go into other countries like England, Belgium, and Spain. If a rider is successful in the race, they earn lots of awards. The entire tour lasts about three weeks, and there are prizes awarded every single day! For example, at the end of each day, the winning cyclists are awarded small amounts of prize money. Additionally, at the end of the race, winning cycling teams are awarded huge amounts of prize money. It is thought to be a great honor to participate in the Tour de France, and it is a wonderful experience to simply watch it!

4. Many runners suffer from athlete's foot. This is a condition where the skin of the foot becomes dry and cracked, and it can be quite painful. It was named athlete's foot because it is common in people who are athletes. It is caused by sweating while wearing athletic socks and shoes. While it is most common on the feet, the infection can be spread to other areas of the body. Some people can get athlete's foot on their armpits, knees, and elbows. Athlete's foot creates flaking, itching, blisters, and cracked skin.

Calf roping requires a high level of cooperation between a rider and their horse. The calf is released into the arena and given a 30-foot head start. When the rider throws the loop, a well-trained horse will stop to allow the rider to dismount and tie any three of the calf's legs. This must be done in seconds.

Steer roping is similar to calf roping. However, steers are bigger, faster, and more unpredictable than calves. In steer wrestling, a rider leaves the horse, jumps onto the steer, and wrestles it to the ground. Just like with calf roping, having a fast time is key.

The last two events both involve the use of broncos instead of horses. A bronco is an untamed range horse chosen because of its lack of training. This makes the events, the Auto racing, also known as motorsport, is a sport that involves racing cars on tracks. Auto racing began in France during the late 1800s and is now one of the world's most-watched sports. The first American automobile race was the Chicago Times-Herald race on November 28, 1895. It was held on Thanksgiving Day. The very first American-made gasoline automobile had been designed just two years earlier in Springfield, Massachusetts. This new and exciting sport thrilled Americans and led to an increased interest in automobiles. Soon after, cars became a popular mode of transportation.
