The Voyager Program is a space exploration program conducted by NASA. Two probes were launched in 1977. Their original mission was to explore Jupiter, Saturn, and their moons. Their mission has been expanded three times. After completing their original mission, the probes continued on to explore Uranus and Neptune. They are the only probes to ever explore these planets. The probes continued to explore deep space beyond our solar system. In 2012, Voyager 1 became the first man-made object to reach "interstellar space", a region beyond the reach of the sun's energy. Both Voyager probes continue to send information about deep space.
