The Two Frogs
(A Japanese Retelling)

Long ago, two frogs lived in Japan. One lived in a ditch in Osaka on the seacoast. The other lived near a little stream that ran through Kyoto. They were a great distance from each other, but they both had the idea to travel and see the world. The frog from Osaka wanted to visit Kyoto. The frog from Kyot

The Enchanted Palace
(A Portuguese Retelling)

A kind maid named Perola lived in the village of Altos Ares. This village was on the island of Terceira. Perola was an unusual beauty. The whole community found joy in her.

On a spring morning, Perola leaned over a cistern where she'd gone to get water. As she admired her beautiful reflection, a spell was cast upon her by a water fairy who had come to the cistern and had seen Perola's beauty. The spell caused Perola to fall into the cistern. She joined her reflection in the water.

The village worried about Perola when she couldn't be found anywhere. Her mother prayed for her safe return. The villagers searched for her everywhere. Finally, the young men of Altos Ares asked the wise woman of Biscoitos for help.

"Your kind Perola is in an enchanted palace. It is made of marble, ivory, tortoiseshell, and mother-of-pearl," the wise woman told them.

The young men of Altos Ares organized a mission to save Perola. They searched the entire
