Armistice Day

World War I ended on November 11, 1918. People were so happy the war had ended, they wanted to celebrate. One year later, they called November 11th "Armistice Day." They had parades and parties. They called it Armistice Day because the agreement to end the war was called an armistice. Many people still celebrate Armistice Day all over the world.

People wear red poppies to celebrate Armistice Day!
