Remade for Running

I looked at the other contestants on either side of me. They were a mix of people of different ages, races, sizes, and shapes. What made them decide to enter the first-ever Jungle Gym Competition? Did they want to test their physical strength? Or did they crave the chance to see an actual jungle up close? Did they want to test their physical strength? Or did they want to test their physical strength? Or did they want to test their physical strength?

The goal of the Jungle Gym Competition was to run through a series of obstacle courses set up along a trail leading into the jungle. The challenges were supposed to test each contestant as we battled our way through the lush vegetation and hot temperatures.

I'd eagerly signed up for the race and had been training since that day. My training style—set up along a trail leading into the jungle, but trees were trees, right? I'd tried each contestant as we battled our way through the lush vegetation and hot temperatures.

1. What is explicitly stated in the text about the Jungle Gym Competition? Choose all that apply.

- The purpose of the competition is to raise funds to support the protection of endangered jungle animals.
- The goal is to run through a series of obstacle course challenges set up along a trail leading into the jungle, in Mexico.
- The full-day race takes place in the Puerto Vallarta Jungle.
- All training for the Jungle Gym Competition takes place in New York in the United States.

2. What text evidence below supports the inference that the main character is serious about competing in this race?

- "I was already sweating, and all I was doing was standing at the starting line."
- "I'd eagerly signed up for the race and had been training since that day."
- "I lunged with my left leg forward, stretching out like the other contestants..."
- "I rolled my shoulders and twisted to the left, then the right..."

3. What is the main character's main reason for competing in this race?

- She wants to tell her friends all about the Puerto Vallarta Jungle.
- She wants to get as much exercise as possible.
- She wants to have bragging rights when she wins the race.
- She wants to prove to herself that she is a strong runner.

4. Which of the following best describes the main character's attitude toward the competition?

- tentative
- determined
- hopeless
- jealous

5. Which text inference that the Jungle?

- "It really was a challenge for me to run through the jungle."
- "...nothing really scares me for this kind of heat."
- "...lunging wouldn't have been possible for me."
- "I willed my rehabilitated legs to carry me forward."

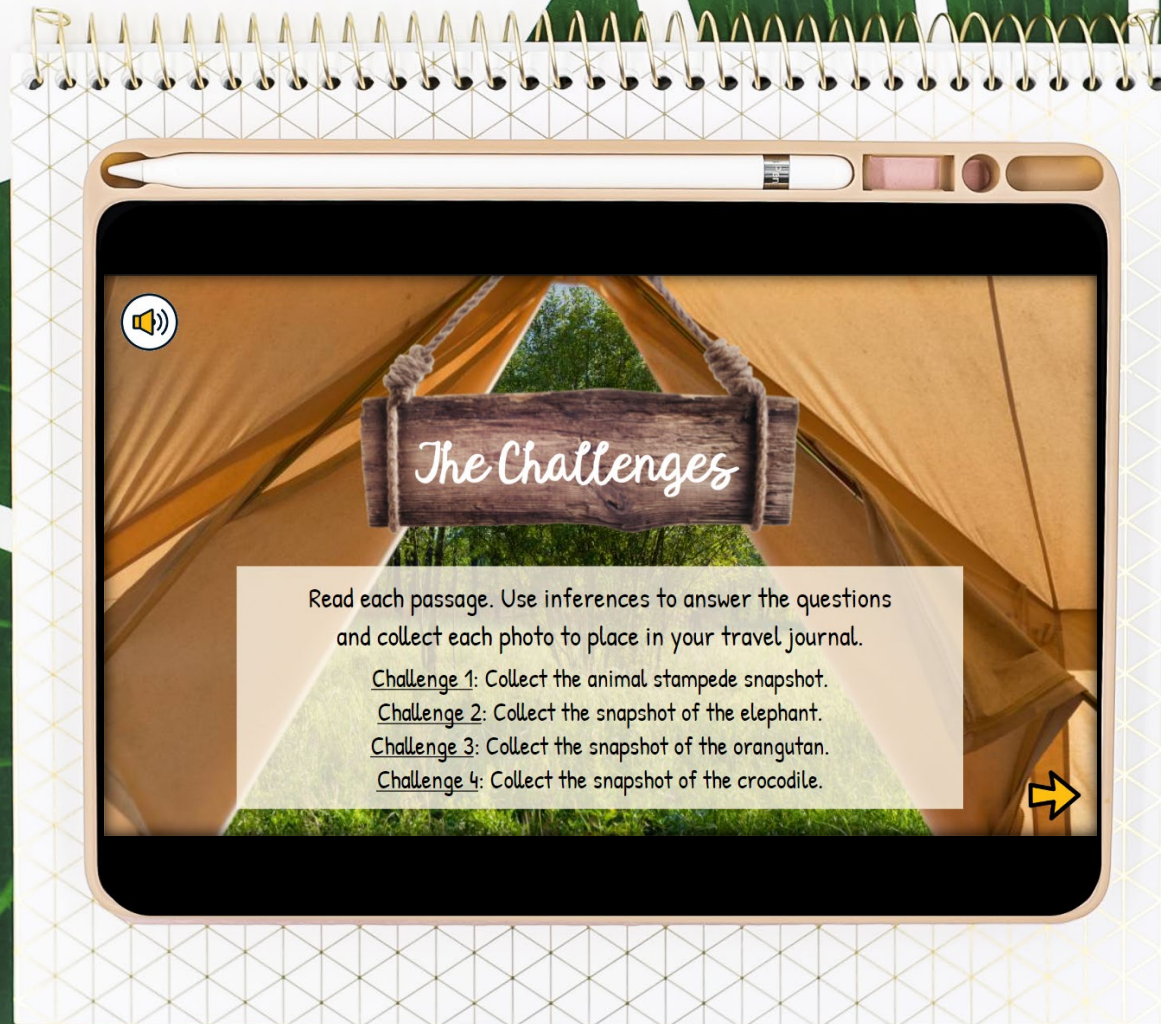

6. What can be inferred about the main character from the story's ending?

- The main character will let someone else win the next competition.
- The main character will not enter any more races that test her physical strength.
- The main character will never return to Puerto Vallarta Jungle.
- The main character will continue to train for the next competition.
