PERSONIFICATION

Ronald ran over to his teammates on the baseball field. The sun smiled down at them on this beautiful summer day, and he was ready to play in the championship game. He warmed up his pitching arm with his friend, Nico, before he had to jog out to the pitcher's mound. Usually, he wasn't nervous to pitch a game, but his teammates and coach would be so disappointed if they lost today. They'd worked so hard

What human ability is being given to the sun in this passage?

- a. heating
- b. laughing
- c. shining
- d. smiling

HYPERBOLE

Jacob erased the division problem he'd been working on for the fourth time. He just couldn't get it to work out right. If he kept spending all his time on that one problem, he'd never get to the rest of them on the page or all the other homework he had to do.

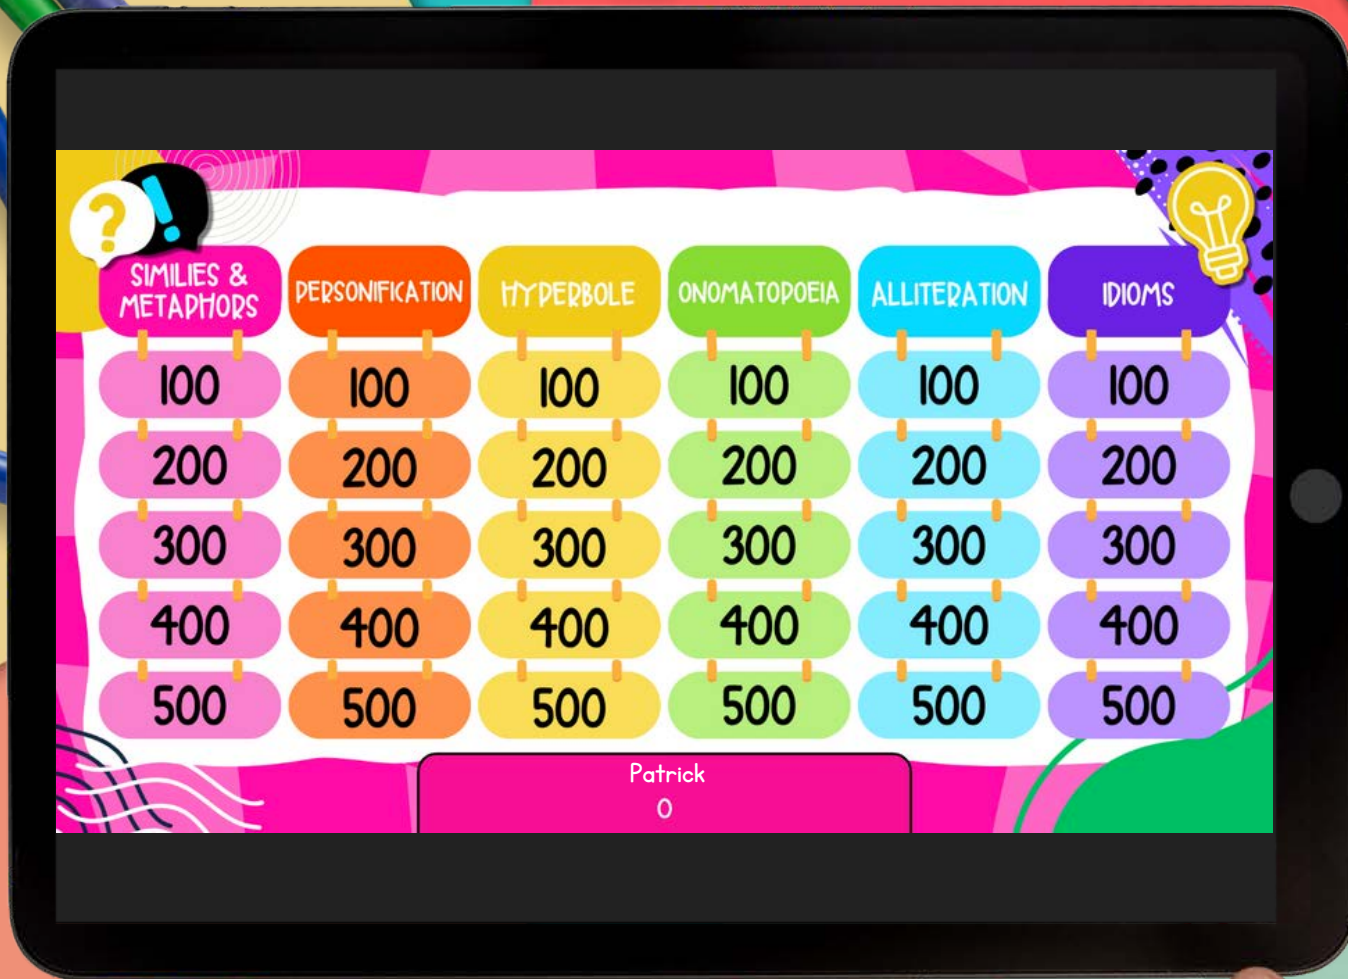

Growling, he gave the division problem another shot, but his doorbell rang, so he got up from the piles of homework on the kitchen table. His best friend,

What does the hyperbole, "But I'm drowning in homework," say about how Jacob is feeling?

- a. Jacob is overwhelmed by all the work he has to complete.
- b. Jacob is afraid because he doesn't know how to swim.
- c. Jacob is uncertain whether he should finish his homework.
- d. Jacob is confused by the homework he has to do.

ONOMATOPOEIA

The final coat of paint was dry on the house I constructed for my yard. I'd used browns and greens so the house would be well camouflaged and included a little shelf on the side to put birdseed for my feathered friends. Over the past few months, I'd observed cardinals, finches, wrens, and sparrows all fluttering around in the trees. I was excited to see what other types of birds my birdhouse might attract. After

What example of onomatopoeia below could replace 'chirping' in the sentence, "Within a few moments, chirping sounded above me, and I raised my gaze to the sky to see who my first guest was," to create a different tone in the passage?

- ☐ a. screeching
- ☒ b. scolding
- ☐ c. tweeting
- ☐ d. peeping

ALLITERATION

A snippy snake
slithers around stones
and slips into soil.
Its snarky sarcasm
stifles social situations
so the snake
stays in solitude,
sulking instead of smiling.
Someday,
some way,
the snake will slay
the sections of his soul
that are too scared

How does alliteration impact this poem?

- a. The alliteration of the "s" sound gives the poem a hissing snake quality.
- b. The alliteration of the "s" sound makes the poem rhyme.
- c. The alliteration of the "s" sound creates a strong image in the reader's mind.
- d. The alliteration of the "s" sound exaggerates the poem's theme.
