🔊 meet Ancient India

Ancient India was one of the world's earliest and most important civilizations. It developed in South Asia near rivers, including the Indus River and the Ganges River. One of its earliest civilizations was the Indus Valley Civilization. It included well-planned cities such as Harappa and Mohenjo-daro.

The people of the Indus Valley built cities with straight streets, brick buildings, drainage systems, and public spaces. These cities show that people were skilled planners and builders. Farmers, merchants traded goods, and artisans made beautiful objects.

🔊 meet Ancient China

Ancient China was one of the world's oldest and most influential civilizations. It developed in East Asia near important rivers, including the Huang He, also called the Yellow River, and the Yangtze River. These rivers helped people grow crops and build communities. The land in China included river valleys, mountains, deserts, and coastlines, which shaped how people lived and traveled.

Ancient China was often ruled by dynasties. A dynasty is a line of rulers from the same family. Emperors led the government, made laws, and controlled large areas of land. Some dynasties were strong and lasted for many years, while others lost power and were replaced by new rulers.
